

AUCHINLECK COMMUNITY ACTION PLAN 2019-2024

Foreword

Auchinleck, as a village, has existed for centuries although, the one we know today probably has its roots in the 19th century. Over the years it has grown into a thriving community, that is proud of its heritage and of its people.

Coal mining was a main feature of the village even in those early times. The evidence of just how important it must have been to the economy and to the way of life can be seen in the numerous pit bings and ruins dotted around the area. A glance at a centuries old map shows that the number of coal mines in the parish of Auchinleck, which included the village of Lugar and the small hamlet of Cronberry, was in the teens at one point. All the mines were privately owned, the coal from these was hard won and the dangerous working and harsh living conditions served to cement the men, women and children in the miners' rows into fiercely proud and close knit communities. These smaller communities were the forerunners of the village we now know as Auchinleck.

Coal mining expanded under the private ownership of the William Baird and Dallmellington mining companies who were responsible for the sinking of two new deep pits of Highhouse and Barony Collieries. Conditions remained difficult but the nationalisation of the mining industry in 1947 saw a huge improvement of miners' working conditions and wages and a period of relative prosperity saw the village grow to a population of over 5,000.

With expansion of the pits came also the introduction of a large number of supportive industries, that provided much needed employment for men and women outside the pits themselves. Shops selling everything a growing community needed stood alongside Curries lemonade factory and the Co-operative Laundry. Along with plentiful employment came a vibrant and dynamic social infrastructure with the local Community Centre at its heart. Entertainment from the local Operatic Society to international concert parties from Russia and elsewhere as well as youth activities and clubs of all descriptions ensured the villagers were never short of cultural fulfilment. The pinnacle of the 50's and 60's was of course Auchinleck dance which could boast that it attracted all the bands of that era who were worth listening to.

A study of the history of Auchinleck shows that even in the 60's the local Councils were worried about the future of industry in the area. A disaster which killed four men and temporarily closed the Barony pit in 1962. This was a major blow to the community and resulted in frantic efforts by the Miners Unions, local Councillors, MP's and local people to keep the mining industry and the community alive. They all succeeded in forcing the Government and Coal Board to sink a new shaft and re-open the Barony in 1966. Alongside the colliery the Barony Power station was built which was fuelled by the by-products from the pit. Sadly however, there was a slow but steady trickle of decline in the country as a whole and while the community rallied behind the miners, who remained the prime workers in the area, when they felt it necessary to strike for better wages in 1972 and 1974 to save the pits from closure. The latter battle was finally lost and the heart of the community weakened when both local pits, Highhouse and Barony, closed for the final time in 1983 and 1989, respectively.

Currently the success of Auchinleck Talbot has contributed greatly to giving the residents some hope to cling to and has helped to maintain that pride and community togetherness which has sustained the village through thick and thin for the last hundred years. So has the work of the various voluntary organisations and council services who have contributed to the compilation of this action plan, which we hope will herald a new beginning for the current and future generations of the village and restore the pride and determination that made us unique and revered all over Scotland.

The 60's proved that working together in a common cause does lead to success. We ask that once again the people of Auchinleck work together again and rise to the challenge of regenerating our community.

Coalfields Community Futures

The Coalfields Community Futures Programme is an approach to local community planning and sustainable community development that aims to encourage active citizenship and build local democracy. It enables communities to devise a community action plan which makes a case for the things that the community thinks are important and wishes to make happen.

The process builds on existing processes of community action research to identify local needs and priorities, using residents as co-researchers. We work with local residents and groups to develop a common sense of purpose and assist them to produce a deliverable community action plan.

To support the action planning process the community receive a Participatory Budget Fund which is available to local constituted community or voluntary groups.

This budget enables the community to fund small projects that are identified by the community through the results of the household surveys, stakeholder interviews and the Community Open Event.

Our Community Now

Population

Auchinleck currently has a total population of around 3,750 with 2,747 people living in the most deprived 20% of areas in Scotland. This figure is based on the Scottish Index of Multiple Deprivation (SIMD) 2016.

Economic activity based on the 2011 Census shows that 63.8% of people between 16-74 are economically active which is lower than Scotland as a whole at 69%.

The village has an "ageing population" with younger people moving away to pursue further education or career progression. With an increasing diverse mix of cultures and ethnicity, the population has changed with more new faces in the village.

Housing

Figures from the 2011 Census show us that over 52% of housing is owner occupied and of the rented accommodation 39% is Local Authority housing. A number of social housing properties have been refreshed in terms of refurbishment, roughcasting and cladding which has made a positive impact to the look of the village. There are small numbers of unoccupied houses that may require to be demolished due to vandalism and attracting anti-social behaviour. A number of vacant brownfield sites are now being utilised by private developers providing a range of new build houses with various apartment sizes including tailoring for those with any special needs.

Economy

Historically Auchinleck was served by two major industries, namely Coalmining and Textiles. Since their demise the main employment sectors has been Retail (Tesco, The Co-operative and minor shops along the Main Street), Transport & Trade Repairs (Liddell's Bus Garage and Bridgend) and Manufacturing (Highouse Industrial Estate). Looking forward, the Scottish Government along with the Three Ayrshire Councils are working to develop their Ayrshire Growth Deal, which will promote and stimulate the whole Ayrshire Economy via a multimillion pound public sector cash injection. Auchinleck has an unemployment rate higher than the East Ayrshire average and almost double the Scottish average. Auchinleck should be well placed to receive economic spin offs from Dumfries House Estate and it's regional attraction due to its close proximity to the village. Auchinleck Community Development Initiative operate a social enterprise for the community offering employment opportunities to previously unemployed residents. To date, they have created over 185 jobs for local residents.

Education & Childcare

Auchinleck has two primary schools (Auchinleck Primary School and St Patrick's Primary School) and one secondary school (Auchinleck Academy) with a catchment area of Auchinleck, Drongan, Catrine, Ochiltree, Mauchline, Muirkirk and Sorn. Young people of secondary age can also opt to attend St. Joseph's Academy in Kilmarnock. Auchinleck Primary incorporates an excellent Early Years facility within the site with an adjacent "Outdoor Classroom" facility. Auchinleck Academy is due to close and merge with Cumnock Academy as part of new £70m learning campus development located between Auchinleck and Cumnock.

The new Campus will incorporate:

- Barshare Primary School, Supported Learning and Early Childhood Centre.
- Greenmill Primary School and Early Childhood Centre.
- Hillside ASN School
- Auchinleck Academy
- Cumnock Academy and Supported Learning Centre

Health & Care

There is an aging population and the number of people living with a limiting long term illness in Auchinleck is 27.8% which is considerably higher than Scotland as a whole at 19.6% Source Census 2011 There are two doctors operating in the surgery with good facilities.

Community Facilities

Auchinleck has a community centre, the Boswell Centre, located within the heart of the village providing a range of rooms and halls available to hire, which are suitable for meetings, presentations, classes and private parties. It offers ample car parking and access to projectors and screens. The Main Hall can accommodate 150 people and is ideal for hosting large-scale events and has a music surround system, projector and a 5m x 4m screen available for use. The Lesser Hall can accommodate 50 people and the fully equipped adjoining kitchen which can also be hired if required.

Auchinleck Library is situated within the centre along with an ICT suite with 12 work units. The village has an outdoor bowling green and an international indoor bowling arena, both producing UK and World Champion bowlers. The Knowe Garden Centre is a two and half acre community garden facility situated directly behind the Boswell Centre with attractions such as a Sensory Garden, Poison Garden and a BBQ social seating area. It also sells plant and flora to the local residents at community prices. The community gardens will be offering horticultural training areas and barbecue areas for community use.

Auchinleck Leisure Centre combines all sports facilities including an indoor pool, indoor playing hall and full sized artificial playing surface. Two full sized grass pitches are located at Merlin Park and are well used by groups & individuals in throughout the village and beyond.

Environment & Open Spaces

Auchinleck is well located for access to green space and woodland. The natural environment has strong links to the rich cultural and industrial heritage that can be found in and around Auchinleck. The local woodland area is great for accessing John Muir Awards. Close by there are very good walks and outdoor activities at Dumfries Estate and Boswell Estate. The Merlin Park is not used to its full potential due to drainage issues. Other assets include the A-Frame bike track and various community seating areas.

Culture & Heritage

Auchinleck as a village has its roots in the 19th century. Coal mining was a main feature of the village even in those early times with numerous pit bings and ruins. The two main pits in the area were Highhouse and Barony Collieries. To commemorate the mining history a frame from the former Barony Colliery has been restored as a visitor attraction set just outside the village. The site boasts a picnic area with interactive information boards and is known as the Barony A Frame.

The village has hosted famous bands in its time, playing to full crowds, the 'Who' being amongst the most notable. There is also a strong heritage of junior football in Auchinleck Talbot with many trophies being won.

Other heritage sites include Pennylands Camps, Boswell Estate and Dumfries House. The Cumnock History Group is actively recording the history of the area and hosts a comprehensive website.

Roads & Transport

Auchinleck has a Railway Station situated behind the Main Street. This line serves commuters going between Glasgow and Carlisle, although Sunday services can be patchy. The A76 by-pass connects Auchinleck with Cumnock and New Cumnock, with the B road taking you through the heart of the village directly into Cumnock town centre. Buses pass through the village to destinations such as Ayr, Kilmarnock and Glasgow. Local groups can utilise transport via a community transport initiative, known locally as the "Yellow Busses". This service provides transport and drivers to voluntary sector groups at subsidised rates.

Community Action Plan: Considerations

Stalled spaces, pockets of unkempt waste ground in and around the village which could be put to good use are a key consideration for many. These spaces could provide useful areas for the community such as parking, leisure and growing spaces. Some of these sites are prone to fly tipping and better enforcement needs to be put in place to deal with this issue.

The Main Street has a number of issues for people including the narrow pavements and volume of traffic that makes pedestrian use of the main street an uncomfortable experience. Many of the shops have closed or are closing and the area is looking dilapidated.

Drainage issues have been highlighted especially at Merlin Park with it being unusable much of the time.

Improvements to transport links have been highlighted as well as the increasing pressure on the limited amenities and services available locally due to the significant housing developments currently underway.
