Memorials

East Ayrshire Council are members of the British Register of Accredited Memorial Masons (BRAMM) and insist that all Memorial Masons working in our cemeteries and churchyards are either BRAMM, National Association of Memorial Masons (NAMM) Registered and accredited or comply with another recognised accredited scheme.

By ensuring that all Memorial Masons are accredited, the Council can be confident that all memorials are now fixed in line with the National Association of Memorial Masons Code of Practice.

It is estimated that there are over 42,000 Memorials and Headstones in East Ayrshire Council's cemeteries and churchyards. Of these it is further estimated that there are between 25% and 33% of stones that fall within category 1 (Category 1 memorial is dangerous and requires to be made safe immediately. Category 2 memorial requires to be re-inspected within 6 months to 1 year period. Category 3 memorial requires to be re-inspected in 5 years).

Memorial Safety

The Council undertake ongoing safety maintenance programmes for headstones throughout East Ayrshire.

As you would expect, a number of old memorials have become unstable over the years (pre 2003). Foundations have deteriorated; joints have not been doweled (bolted) and have become loose. In some cases where dowels have been used, they have become rusted and unsafe. Memorials had not been doweled from the plate to the base and/or from the base to the foundation. Inspections showed that in most cases a thin layer of cement was the only fixing and that these joints had become weathered/loose, which therefore put the stone in a dangerous condition. The Council requires all Memorial Masons to be accredited and aims therefore to protect the public and allow them to have confidence that their memorial/ headstones are erected in a safe manner.

Further guidelines from the HSE indicate that Councils' must inspect all memorials (which they are responsible for) in line with the Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 and the Occupiers Liability Act 1960, which therefore means that the Council may have to take immediate action.

If your headstone becomes unsafe then the Council may be required to take the following action: lie the stone flat, stake and tie, sheugh (ditched into the soil), or any other suitable method of making the memorial safe, so that the Council comply with the relevant Health & Safety Law.

If you have any concerns about your memorial or would wish to discuss the matter further, please do not hesitate to contact a member of the Bereavement Services staff.

East Ayrshire Council takes the safety of the public and staff seriously. Whilst we understand that it may be upsetting to lair owners and bereaved families, it is also essential that we ensure that cemeteries can be safe environments for all.

The Council's Bereavement Services staff will be able to assist members of the public when they are making decisions on purchasing a memorial or have concerns with regard to its safety. Staff will also be able to address any specific questions relating to the safety inspection program.
