These young people become the responsibility of the local authority in which they present, meaning that many local authorities in the South of England are supporting disproportionate numbers of UASC. The request for the resettlement of young people seeks to reduce pressure on local authorities and to provide a more settled future for the young people seeking asylum. East Ayrshire have been keen to offer support this initiative which was initially discussed in 2016 however it is recognised that this is a complex area legislatively and in respect of financial implications, although morally members felt it was the right thing to do. A supported accommodation model has now been developed working with colleagues in neighbourhood services with additional services being involved as the requirements of the young people are known. Colleagues in housing and social work services were commended on the work and commitment they have shown to make this happen. The Board welcomed and approved the report which will be discussed at EAC Cabinet meeting on 4th December 2019.
